How We Arrived Here: Summary Background to the SJW Merger

The SJW Merger Is the Result of Rigorous, Independent Process Designed to Serve the Best Interests of CTWS Shareholders

Initial SJW Approach

- June 2016: SJW approached CTWS about a potential MOE transaction with no premium
- August 2016 – January 2017: CTWS and SJW conducted mutual due diligence and held preliminary discussions regarding a potential transaction
 - At the time, SJW verbally proposed a no-premium transaction
- January 2017: Following a thorough review and evaluation, the CTWS and SJW Boards discontinued discussions
 - At this time, the CTWS Board elected to continue to pursue growth opportunities independently and build upon CTWS' strong track record of outperformance and robust shareholder returns

Review of Strategic Opportunities and SJW Re-Approach

- November 2016 – May 2017: CTWS explored another transaction involving the possible acquisition of a large water utility, which did not occur
 - Notwithstanding the unsuccessful acquisition process, the Board recognized it should consider other opportunities to increase scale and geographic diversity as a potential path for expanding its investor base, increasing capital markets access and enhancing shareholder value
- February – July 2017: Consistent with its independent growth strategy, CTWS completed the acquisitions of HVWC and AWC to add nearly 10,000 new water customers across Connecticut
- September 2017: SJW hired former CTWS CEO, Eric Thornburg, as CEO and President
- November – December 2017: SJW re-approached CTWS with a non-binding indication of interest offering an all-stock MOE at an exchange ratio of 1.000x
 - Recognizing a combination with SJW continued to offer potential value creation opportunities and maintained strong industrial logic, the Board elected to re-engage with SJW

The SJW Merger Is the Result of Rigorous, Independent Process Designed to Serve the Best Interests of CTWS Shareholders

Thorough Review of SJW Merger and Other Alternatives Resulted in Enhanced Offer

Board's Consideration of Eversource's Initial Advances

- November – March 2018: The Board held eight meetings and the CF&I Committee held four meetings, directing management on negotiations, which resulted in a substantial improvement of the proposed terms and CTWS valuation
 - The Board worked closely with Wells Fargo Securities, Sullivan & Cromwell and management to evaluate the SJW offer, conduct due diligence and negotiate potential terms
 - The Board negotiations resulted in CTWS achieving two significant price increases and meaningful benefits for all CTWS stakeholders
- During its review of the SJW offer, the Board also discussed, reviewed, and evaluated the potential for other alternatives, including maintaining status quo or a sale to a third party
 - The Board further determined it would be in the best interests of CTWS shareholders to pursue an MOE enabling continued ownership and participation in CTWS' strong asset base and future growth
- October 2017: A representative of Eversource contacted our chairman, Carol Wallace, to discuss Eversource's interest in acquiring CTWS
 - During this discussion, Ms. Wallace indicated the Board was pleased with the company's performance and future growth strategy and was not interested in an outright sale of CTWS
- In February 2018, Ms. Wallace and the Eversource representative discussed, in response to Eversource's request for a meeting, the Board's position to not pursue an outright sale of CTWS
- Nonetheless, the Board, working closely with Wells Fargo Securities, carefully considered and evaluated Eversource's financial wherewithal, credit capacity and earnings expectations to estimate its ability to acquire CTWS at a premium valuation
- Based on that evaluation, the Board saw no evidence that Eversource could deliver a proposal superior to the SJW Merger, which was validated by Eversource's subsequent inferior proposal (submitted in April 2018)

The SJW Merger Is the Result of Rigorous, Independent Process Designed to Serve the Best Interests of CTWS Shareholders

Board's Decision to Proceed with SJW Merger

- The Board determined the SJW Merger was the most attractive option for numerous reasons, including the following:
 - Immediate and ongoing value creation for CTWS shareholders
 - Increased scale/diversity to position CTWS to continue to provide shareholders with top tier returns
 - Determination that other parties would likely not be able to provide materially better terms than SJW, given relative valuations and capital constraints
 - Desire to ensure CTWS shareholders' ability to remain invested in a pure-play water utility, on a tax-free basis

Unsolicited Approach by Eversource

- April 2018: Following the SJW Merger announcement, Eversource made an unsolicited inferior proposal
- The undermarket value proposed by Eversource reinforced the Board's prior analysis and decision not to engage with Eversource
 - Eversource's proposal is below the value of CTWS' shares on the day it made its proposal public

Review and Rejection of Eversource's Inferior Proposal

- April 2018: The independent members of the Board thoroughly evaluated and rejected Eversource's proposal and reaffirmed its commitment to the SJW Merger
- The merger agreement with SJW clearly states that CTWS is bound to continue to use its reasonable best efforts to close the SJW Merger and limits its ability to engage with Eversource, or any potential interloper, in the absence of a Superior Proposal
- Further, the Board firmly believes in the growth prospects, industrial logic, and substantial long-term value creating opportunities presented by the SJW Merger

SJW Group

Eversource's Unsolicited Acquisition Proposal Is Not a Superior Proposal

Under the SJW Merger Agreement, CTWS Is Prohibited from Engaging with Eversource Unless Eversource Submits a Superior Proposal, as Defined by the Merger Agreement

Eversource's proposal is undermarket and provides less value to CTWS shareholders than the SJW Merger

Eversource's cash alternative would prevent CTWS shareholders from participating in any future growth

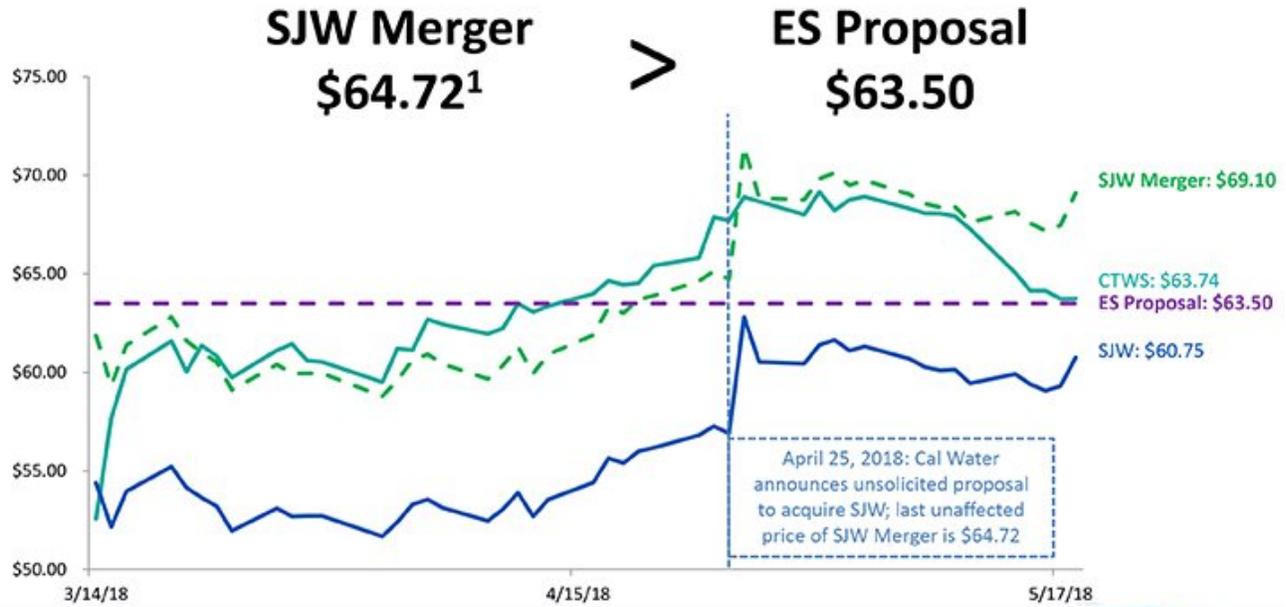

Eversource's stock alternative is not an attractive acquisition currency for CTWS shareholders

Eversource's proposal is inconsistent with the investment criteria that our shareholders say they value

Eversource's proposal is bad for customers, employees, communities and shareholders

Eversource's Proposal Is Undermarket, Provides Less Value than SJW Merger and Undervalues CTWS

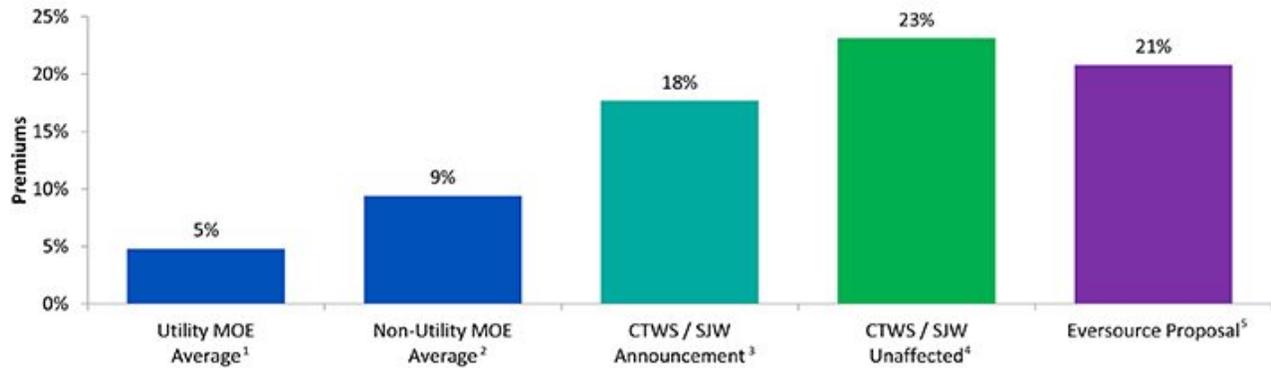

CTWS Continues to Trade at Values Superior to Eversource's Inferior, Non-binding Proposal Price

¹ Based on 1.1375x exchange ratio and SJW unaffected share price as of April 25, 2018 of $56.90
Note: The value per share of the SJW Merger is not fixed and fluctuates based on SJW Group's stock price | Market data as of May 18, 2018

Eversource's Non-Binding Acquisition Proposal Represents an Inferior Valuation Premium

- The SJW Merger announcement premium of 18% is well above the average premium of 5% for MOEs
- Eversource's proposed 21% premium is below the SJW Merger unaffected premium of 23%

² All non-utility industry MOE premiums in the last 3 years

³ Based on 1.1375x exchange-ratio and SJW and CTWS announcement share prices as of March 14, 2018 of $54.38 and $52.57, respectively

⁴ Based on 1.1375x exchange-ratio and SJW share prices as of April 25, 2018 of $56.90 and CTWS announcement share price as of March 14, 2018 of $52.57

⁵ Based on Eversource proposal of $63.50 and CTWS' March 14, 2018 close price of $52.57

While Eversource May Need CTWS for Growth and Value Creation, CTWS Does Not Need Eversource

- Eversource has delivered inferior historical shareholder returns
 - Over the past five years, CTWS and SJW have delivered a 172% and 148% total return, respectively, compared to only a 56% total return for Eversource¹
- Eversource's future growth is doubted by industry experts
 - "Why attempt to step in to an already announced deal (SJW-CTWS merger) that is set to close by year end 2018?... Is this so important for the ES growth story? While we understand management's frustration with CTWS not engaging, pursuing this only suggests to us that ES management needs this deal to support their growth story." - Citi, May 3, 2018
- Eversource's business is at further risk due to its poor customer service record, which has led to investigations, raising regulatory risks and reputational risks with customers and other key stakeholders
 - Bottom quartile in customer service for East region
 - 97 out of 103 in customer satisfaction
 - Bottom half in four of five categories for US electric utilities
 - Currently being investigated by PURA, due to 100% increase in customer shutoff rates

Analysts Support the SJW Merger and Question Eversource's Actions

Analysts Have Supported the SJW Merger...

- "With expected accretion to earnings in year one post close, we see no reason not to do the deal; the combination creates the third largest water utility in the U.S., and creates a coast-to-coast growth platform for the future. The regulatory environments in CA and CT (where the bulk of the operations are located) can be challenging at times for utilities (CT is better for water than electric & gas); but we consider TX and ME as solidly constructive."

—Janney, March 15, 2018

- "We believe this combination (and type of combination) makes a lot of sense for strong corporations that have struggled with relevancy amongst much of the institutional investor community... We like bringing former CEO Eric Thornburg back into the fold, and we suspect the company could benefit from a broader/combined business development group, while reasonably being able to retain its favorable regional image and reputation."

— Hilliard Lyons, March 15, 2018

...But Questioned Eversource's Hostile Pursuit of CTWS

- "While the transaction is relatively minor for ES (CTWS has a market cap of $825M vs. ES's market cap of $18.9B), questions we have heard from clients focus on the takeover attempts being a distraction and raising questions about longer-term organic growth potential."

— Deutsche Bank, May 3, 2018

- "CTWS wasn't interested. Why not move on? CTWS is Less than 5% of ES's Market Cap. Pursuing this will draw management time and effort -- this is for a deal that looks almost inconsequential to the ES story..."

— Citi, May 3, 2018
