The following factors, among others, could cause or contribute to such material differences: failure to satisfy any of the conditions of closing, including the failure to obtain Trane stockholder approval; the risks that IR’s and Trane’s businesses will not be integrated successfully; the risk that IR and Trane will not realize estimated cost savings and synergies; costs relating to the proposed transaction; disruption from the transaction making it more difficult to maintain relationships with customers, employees, distributors or suppliers; the level of end market activity in IR’s and Trane’s commercial and residential market; weather conditions that could negatively or positively affect business and results of operations; additional developments which may occur that could affect the IR’s or Trane’s estimate of asbestos liabilities and recoveries; unpredictable difficulties or delays in the development of new product technology; fluctuations in pricing of our products, the competitive environment and related market conditions; changes in law or different interpretations of laws that may affect Trane’s or IR’s expected effective tax rate; increased regulation and related litigation; access to capital; and actions of domestic and foreign governments. Additional factors that could cause IR’s and Trane’s results to differ materially from those described in the forward-looking statements can be found in the 2006 Annual Report on Form 10-K of IR and the 2006 Annual Report on Form 10-K of Trane filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the “SEC”) and available at the SEC’s Internet site (<http://www.sec.gov>). ## Questions and Answers/March 3, 2008

1. As originally communicated, Trane shareowners will receive a combination of $36.50 in cash and 0.23 of an Ingersoll Rand common per each Trane share. On Feb. 29, 2008, Ingersoll Rand stock closed at $41.86 per share, and Trane stock closed at $45.05 per share. How does the sale to Ingersoll Rand benefit Trane shareowners?

Trane shareowners will receive the chance to immediately realize value for a significant portion of their investment in Trane in the form of cash and a portion of Ingersoll Rand stock. If the sale were completed on February 29, Trane shareowners would receive value of approximately $46.13 per share, based on the closing share price for Ingersoll Rand stock on that date. You may recall that the average closing price of Trane common stock for the 30 trading days prior to the December 17 announcement was $36.27 per share.

While Trane is a fundamentally strong business on its own, the sale to Ingersoll Rand is expected to provide the combined company with the opportunity to reduce costs and improve sales and profitability. As a result of the sale, Trane shareowners become Ingersoll Rand shareowners with the chance to participate in this potential growth.

In the event that the sale is not completed, such news could negatively affect Trane's stock price, as well as the future business and financial results of Trane. Trane could be subject to several risks, including its ability to achieve future projections and deliver expected margin improvement. Further risk to Trane may include impact based on economic conditions in the HVAC industry in general.

2. Current questions in the Q&A indicate that employees without three years of service will NOT become vested if jobs are eliminated as a result of the integration. Is that response in conflict with the permanent shutdown provision that is described on page 9 of the ESOP and Savings Plan Summary Plan Description?

No. In general, vesting of employer contributions in the ESOP and Savings Plan occurs after three years of service or attainment of age 65 while still employed. There is a provision providing for vesting if the plan administrator determines that a "permanent shutdown" has occurred and employment terminates as a result of that event. However, it does not appear that the acquisition alone qualifies as a permanent shutdown as defined in the plans.

3. Is the Trane Employee Stock Purchase Plan (ESPP) still available for first-time participation?

No. With the pending sale of Trane to Ingersoll Rand, the Trane Board of Directors recently voted to suspend the ESPP after the March 31, 2008 purchase period as required in the agreement with Ingersoll Rand. There will be no contributions taken after the March 31 purchase, which will be based on a 15 percent discount of the March 31 closing price of Trane stock. Based on the plan's eligibility rules, you would have had to enroll in the plan before Jan. 1, 2008 to participate for the March 31 purchase period.

In the next few weeks, those who are enrolled in the plan will receive specific communication to provide further detail regarding the plan's suspension. Looking ahead, Ingersoll-Rand does not have an ESPP; however, Ingersoll Rand employees can acquire IR shares through its 401 (k) plan.
