May 6, 2020

Dear Colleagues,

While I do not typically send written updates with earnings, there are a few unique circumstances that I believe warrant a note this quarter.

First, I continue to be impressed with how our global teams have pulled together through the COVID-19 pandemic – we should be proud of our collective efforts and I know you will continue to make the right decisions for our people and our business.

Second, I'd like to congratulate our team in Seneca, South Carolina for the work they have done to restart the facility following a tornado that struck last month. What you have accomplished is remarkable and our thoughts are with you and the entire community as the rebuilding effort continues.

Finally, in addition to our Q1 2020 earnings results, we issued a press release earlier today with an update to our previously announced acquisition of Delphi Technologies.

Q12020 Financial Results and Related Company Updates

While industry production rates were understandably volatile in Q1, our performance was strong on a relative basis. The company reported $2.3 billion in sales, representing an 8.1% decrease from the prior year period. By comparison, our market was down approximately 20% in the quarter, which means BorgWarner drove significant outgrowth in all major regions. We also delivered strong free cash flow of $146 million, which gives us a cash cushion as we manage through lower production levels. Maintaining a strong focus on cash flow and liquidity management is paramount in challenging times like these.

We anticipate a very challenging remainder of the year, especially in Q2. The biggest drivers of this uncertainty are the timing of production restarts and the pace at which industry production ramps back up. While our visibility into the production outlook has certainly improved compared to even just a month ago, there is still a lot of uncertainty around the sustainability and ramp up of this production over the balance of the year.

The actions we've taken to help moderate the impact of the production declines have been felt companywide. Indeed, our financial strength and operational discipline will allow us to successfully manage the ongoing challenges. As we work towards a production restart, we will continue to prioritize the health and safety of our people.

Delphi Technologies Transaction Update

We also announced this morning that BorgWarner and Delphi Technologies have amended certain terms of our definitive transaction agreement. The amended terms relate to the total revolver borrowings that Delphi Technologies can have outstanding at the time the transaction closes; in connection with this, the stock consideration that Delphi Technologies' shareholders will receive at that time has been reduced. This represents a resolution between our two companies regarding a breach that we alleged. A copy of the release can be found on www.borgwarner.com.

We continue to believe in the strategic merits of this transaction. Our integration planning efforts remain on track as we move ahead expeditiously towards closing in the second half of 2020.

On behalf of our Board and senior leadership, I want to thank you again for everything you have done and will continue to do for each other and the business.

Be well.

Best,

Stay healthy and see you very soon.

Fred,

/s/ Frédéric B. Lissalde
