FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Morningstar, Inc. to Acquire Annuity Intelligence Business of Advanced Sales and Marketing Corp. (ASMC)

CHICAGO, Oct. 21, 2010—Morningstar, Inc. (NASDAQ: MORN), a leading provider of independent investment research, has entered into a definitive agreement to acquire the annuity intelligence business of Advanced Sales and Marketing Corp. (ASMC) based in Oakbrook Terrace, Ill. Morningstar expects to complete the transaction in the next few weeks. The purchase price is $14.1 million, subject to post-closing adjustments.

The Annuity Intelligence Report (AI Report), one of ASMC’s two product lines, is a web-based service that helps broker-dealers, insurers, and the financial professionals they support better understand and more effectively present variable annuity products to their clients. The AI Report service leverages a proprietary database of more than 1,000 variable annuities that includes “plain-English” translations of complex but important information found in prospectuses and other public filings. AI Report’s simplified format helps to better ensure that investors understand what they are purchasing and that advisors are meeting suitability review requirements and properly structuring annuity contracts. The AI Report includes FINRA-reviewed single annuity and side-by-side comparison reports as well as annuity flow data, a contract and benefit selector tool, historical contract data, and optional subaccount data.

The annuity intelligence business serves 170 firms, including broker-dealers, banks, advisory firms, and insurance companies. More than 150,000 financial advisors have access to the AI Report through these firms.

ASMC also offers the MaxPlan wholesaler productivity system, a business planning and territory management tool for mutual fund and annuity distributors, which Morningstar is not acquiring.
“The Annuity Intelligence Report team has a deep knowledge of variable annuities, and offers a leading service that helps financial professionals provide better recommendations to their clients while avoiding the errors and liabilities that are quite common when selling and processing variable annuities,” said Chris Boruff, president of Morningstar’s software division. “By combining Morningstar’s strength in variable annuity subaccount data and modeling tools with AI Report’s product-level data, and proprietary methodologies, we believe we’re creating the best-of-breed offering for investors and financial advisors.”

“ASMC focuses on helping mutual fund companies, insurance carriers, and broker-dealers become more productive,” said Karen (Falat) Larson, president and founder of ASMC. “Morningstar’s large presence in the advisor channel and its history of investment research innovation will enable the annuity intelligence business to bring new ideas to market faster.”

After the acquisition is completed, the annuity intelligence business will become part of Morningstar’s advisor software unit. The company plans to keep the Annuity Intelligence Report product name for the foreseeable future and will market it under the Morningstar brand.

Kevin Loffredi, senior vice president and co-founder of ASMC, will continue to manage the annuity intelligence business. Morningstar expects to retain the majority of the business’s employees.

Karen Larson, president and founder, and ASMC’s chief executive officer, Perry Moore, will continue to run ASMC’s wholesaler productivity business under the new name MaxPlan Solutions, Inc.

City Securities Corp. acted as financial advisor to ASMC on this transaction.
